

Alexey Grigorev

Keep production behind CI/CD

Coding agents can help, but they should not hold production keys.

Experiment safely

For toy apps, agents are useful for learning deployment commands and platform setup.

Limit access

For production, keep credentials away from coding agents. If they cannot reach production, they cannot change it.

Use a controlled path

Deploy automatically to dev, run tests, inspect the result, then manually promote to production.

Do not paste secrets

Secrets in chat can end up in transcripts or telemetry. Pass production tokens through CI/CD secrets.

follow for practical AI engineering notes

Full recording: End-to-End Agent Deployment